John Mark Huff is a Member in the Health Care industry group, focusing primarily on health care litigation. He practices out of the Firm's office in Charleston, West Virginia.

John concentrates his practice in the areas of general, medical, and health care litigation. A substantial part of his practice involves the defense of doctors, nurses, hospitals, and other health care providers in actions brought under the West Virginia Medical Professional Liability Act (MPLA).

John enjoys many facets of his practice, but his favorite day-to-day tasks include taking and defending depositions and legal research and writing. He loves immersing himself in the facts of the case and quickly becomes an invaluable team player.

His ability to dedicate himself fully to the task at hand crosses over to how he spends his time outside of the office. When he isn't representing clients or researching for a case, John serves as a very active member of his community. You can find him on the football field coaching or relaxing in the stands watching a game. John also partakes regularly in CrossFit and enjoys running in his spare time. His active lifestyle doesn't stop there; he also is a first-degree black belt in the American Taekwondo Association.

Whether he's coaching local kids or providing counsel for those in the medical field, John is always a dedicated team member and adds value to the Jackson Kelly team.
