Lindsey McNamee is an Associate in the Litigation practice group, focusing primarily on general litigation. She practices out of the Firm's office in Lexington, Kentucky.

A passion for helping others and her community is what drives Lindsey McNamee. From her time as a Summer Associate with Jackson Kelly to being a member of Moot Court and President of the Appalachian Law Caucus, her focus always remains the same: practicing the law and serving her community.

Away from the law, Lindsey enjoys spending time with her parents and brothers, trying new local restaurants in Lexington with my friends, hiking at the gorge, and baking.
