W. Rodes Brown is a Member in the Banking industry group, focusing primarily on real estate. He practices out of the Firm's office in Lexington, Kentucky.

W. Rodes excels at representing clients engaged in the acquisition, development, leasing, and sale of real estate in natural resources, commercial, and residential projects. He routinely represents clients in the oil and gas and mineral industries in a variety of areas, including mineral rights, leases, title examination, and curative work.

W. Rodes has spent many years serving his clients and building his practice. Throughout his time at Jackson Kelly, he has grown from an attorney who knew the law to an attorney who knows both the law and the businesses he serves – a crucial characteristic. His cultivated knowledge of law and industry is a hallmark of what sets Jackson Kelly apart.
